Dated: 25th January, 2017

Subject: President confers National Awards for Best electoral practices for the year 2017

Election Commission of India celebrates 7th National Voters' Day with theme "Empowering Young & Future Voters"

Hon'ble President of India, Shri Pranab Mukherjee said that there has been some talk about simultaneous elections to the Lok Sabha and State Assemblies in political circles. If an initiative is taken by Election Commission and political parties arrive at a consensus, reform is possible. He said such a move can reduce inconvenience in terms of expenditure and management. The President said this while speaking at the 7th National Voters' Day Celebrations in New Delhi on 25th January, 2017.

Pointing out that in the last General Elections in 2014, over 66% of the total electorate of 834 million voted, the President congratulated the Election Commission on the successful conduct of this huge exercise. He also congratulated Indian voters for exercising their right to vote and showing utmost maturity in doing so.

The President said the Election Commission requires unflinching support as they are trying to motivate young people in exercising their most fundamental democratic right of voting. It is essential that the Election Commission should be an independent and competent institution. Over the years, the Election Commission of India has proved to be so and is appreciated all over the world.

The President said he was confident the Election Commission can maintain its existing standards and continues to improvise and evolve. The Election Commission has made a unique contribution to strengthening the bedrock of Indian democracy. We can take legitimate pride in the fact that we are the largest democracy in the world.

In his address, Dr Nasim Zaidi, the Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) said that the Election Commission will lay special focus on Future Voters under Systematic Voter Education Programme in the year 2017 and onward. Dr Zaidi hoped that the first time and future voters will get encouraged to be part of electoral process. In India, over 62 million persons fall in the age group of 15 to 17 years and have been coined as future voters. Every year, 20 million persons out of the future voters turn 18 to become first time voters, Dr Zaidi added.

Considering Future voters as a focus group, the CEC said that the Commission has launched a unique programme this month called “Interactive School Engagement”. As on date 11,000 schools and 23 lakh student across the country have been covered under this engagement.

Listing out several initiatives taken by the Commission during 2016, Dr Zaidi said the Commission reignited the public and political debate on the issue of long pending electoral reforms by releasing in public domain, a compendium of all pending reform proposals. First ever global conference on voter education was organised where New Delhi Declaration on voter education was released and a Voter Information Communication and Education Net or VOICE.Net was launched.

Dr Zaidi congratulated young and future voters, all officers and other organizations who received national awards for outstanding and successful management and contribution to the elections in 2016. The CEC also mentioned the special contribution of Shri S.K. Mendiratta, Legal Advisor of ECI for rendering exceptional services over 53 years. This year the Commission also recognized the honorary work being carried out by four professors from premier IITs and working with the Commission under the banner of Technical Evaluation Committee, the CEC added.

On the occasion, the President presented Election Photo Identity Cards (EPICs) to five new young voters and felicitated six future voters. The President also conferred National Awards for Best electoral practices for the year 2016 to the twelve officers. In addition, the awards under the special category, Best State, National CSO award, National Award for Government Department & National Media Award were also presented.

Chief Election Commissioner released the book “Unfolding Indian Elections- Journey of living democracy” and presented the first copy to the President. This book has been brought out by the Election Commission of India and Publication Division, Ministry of Information & Broadcasting.

Election Commissioner Shri. A. K. Joti introduced the National Awards which were presented for excellence in various aspects of conduct of elections i.e. electoral roll management, IT initiatives, security management etc.

Election Commissioner Shri. O.P. Rawat in his welcome address highlighted the significant efforts undertaken by Election Commission of India since its inception for further strengthening the democracy.

Deputy Election Commissioner Shri. Umesh Sinha gave the vote of thanks and once again wished all who were present and across India, a very Happy National Voters' day.

The Election Commissioners Shri A.K. Joti and Shri O.P. Rawat, representatives of political parties, former CECs, heads of 15 Election Management Bodies, international organisations and officers of ECI attended the National level function.

National Voters' Day (NVD)

25th January, celebrated as the National Voters' Day. This year marks the 7th NVD with theme "Empowering Young & Future Voters". NVD aims at increasing enrolment of voters, especially newly eligible young voter (18-19 years) & ensure universal adult franchise for all. NVD is being celebrated since 2011 on 25th January, the foundation Day of Election Commission of India (25th January,1950).
